(LOS ANGELES, CA) — REDCAT presents Raspberry Poser, a new video and the first solo exhibition in Los Angeles by New York-based artist Jordan Wolfson. Internationally acclaimed for his films, videos and installations, Wolfson's works engage new possibilities for meaning and the interpretative response to images. The third in a trilogy of recent animated works that includes Animation, Masks (2011) and Con Leche (2009), Raspberry Poser is Wolfson's most ambitious synthesis of digital video, computer-generated-imagery (CGI) and hand-drawn animation.

Raspberry Poser will be on view in the Gallery at REDCAT from Sunday, December 2, 2012 to Sunday, January 27, 2013 with an opening reception for the artist on Saturday, December 1st from 6 to 9pm.

The world of Raspberry Poser is inhabited by silvery heart-filled condoms, mutating red blood cells, a lock and key in coitus, a listless punk, a destructive shapeshifting kid and a rubbery anthropomorphic HIV virus. Set against a backdrop of still and moving images and a pop soundtrack, the actors and animated objects float, bounce and pulsate from one scene to the next—their rhythmic activities framed by Soho boutiques, children's bedrooms, Parisian parks and the paintings of Caravaggio.

Employing materials culled from Internet image searches, the artist's own lived experience and the histories of art and popular entertainment, Raspberry Poser touches upon and undermines the gravity of such pervasive themes as life, death and love. An assembly of found images, sampled music, commissioned animations and scenes filmed on location in Paris and New York are subject to a series of formal strategies borrowed from the history of animated cartoons, including a disregard of the fourth wall through direct address; the endless repetition and mutation of form; a malleable and permeable cinematic frame; and the appearance of depth on a layered two-dimensional plane.

Through these means, Raspberry Poser considers the developments of digital and analog animation as essential to the histories of modernism and modernity, responsible for shaping and relaying the concerns of sculptural and pictorial modes of representation since its invention and defining our relationship to images and objects.

The exhibition is accompanied by a publication, co-produced by REDCAT and the Stedelijk Museum voor Actuele Kunst (S.M.A.K.), Ghent, Belgium, with contributions by Esther Leslie, Aram Moshayedi, Linda Norden and Philippe Van Cauteren.

Jordan Wolfson (b. 1980, New York) graduated from the Rhode Island School of Design in 2003 and currently lives and works in New York. He was the recipient of the prestigious Cartier Award in 2009, was included in the 2006 Whitney Biennial and has been the subject of solo exhibitions and screenings in national and international museums and cultural institutions, including Midway Contemporary Art, Minneapolis, Minnesota (2012); Kunstsammlung Nordrhein-Westfalen, Düsseldorf (2011); CCA Wattis Institute for Contemporary Arts, San Francisco (2009); Swiss Institute, New York (2008); GAMEC, Bergamo, Italy (2007); and Kunsthalle Zürich, Switzerland (2004). In June 2013, S.M.A.K., Ghent will present Wolfson's most comprehensive survey exhibition to date.

Jordan Wolfson: Raspberry Poser is funded in part with generous support from Jill and Peter Kraus; Isabelle and Charles Berkovic; James Lindon; Brooke and Daniel Neidich; Johann König, Berlin; and T293, Naples/Rome.
